

An Old Saying

"The wise man locks the stable door before the horse is stolen."

A little ordinary forethought prevents loss. You can not afford to be without insurance on home and household goods.

Lock the door against loss from fire by taking out a policy.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Editor Advertiser: While reading in your valuable paper of yesterday, under the topic of "Evidence in Korean Case," my attention was caught by the phrase, "P. H. Yong, another Korean, gave evidence along the same lines and P. K. Yoon, the interpreter, told how the confessions of the accused men had been obtained by Chester Doyle through him, acting as interpreter," on which I wish to make an explanation. It is true that I was an interpreter in that case, but it was not P. K. Yoon through whose interpretation the confessions of the accused men were obtained. The confessions had already been made through C. H. Yong of Hilo, as interpreter, before I went there. Respectfully,
P. K. YOON.

The location of the offices of the Manhattan Brokerage Co. in Honolulu, will probably be announced in the afternoon papers. Manager Murphy is negotiating for centrally located rooms and will close a deal today.

On the arrival of the Kinai at Hilo and other ports on Hawaii the police were watching for Francisco Pasquale, alias Lopez, the escaped Porto Rican prisoner. Captain Fetter had half a dozen policemen, under orders to shoot if necessary, at the Hilo wharf. Nothing was seen of Lopez.

Curtis P. Iaukea has been talking Democratic-Home Rule fusion at many meetings on Hawaii. Kanio, the Home Rule leader, appeared on the platform with him and also advocated fusion. At Hilo John T. Baker made a humorous speech without giving encouragement to any party. He declared he was not a partisan.

The Hawaiian Mission Children's Society holds its annual meeting next Saturday afternoon, May 19th, at Lunaliho Home, under the spreading banyan tree. The meeting will commence promptly at 3 o'clock, and after the regular business is finished, a time will be spent in listening to the reading of a number of short papers, each presenting some characteristic passage in the life of a missionary. These papers will doubtless be of great interest to all present.

Ben H. Brown, Hilo, is under summons to show cause before Judge Parsons tomorrow why he should not make an accounting as guardian of the estate of Mrs. Emma Kaaewaluan, an insane person. On his appointment in December, 1899, Brown received $276.29 belonging to the ward. On February 3, 1902, he sold real estate for $619.75. He leased land for $100 a year and had personal property in charge. It is alleged that he has never accounted for any of these things.

James Alo, who was a clerk in Alexander & Baldwin's San Francisco office, has returned to his home in Kula, Maui. In his stories of the disaster he tells of a police officer in uniform who stood by a fountain coining money in selling water at a dollar a cup. "When the soldiers came," Alo's narrative runs, "they ordered him to leave the fountain and on his refusal ran a bayonet through the self-appointed proprietor of what was in reality one of the city's drinking fountains."

Supervisor Fernandez introduced a resolution, which the Board of Supervisors of the County of Oahu actually passed, the preamble of which declared that "a complaining communication by a county official against another brother officer" was a "condemnable" proceeding, "in that it would sooner or later, if allowed to continue, naturally work and create hard feelings between and among county officials—not considering the smallness of such a proceeding," and therefore it was resolved that any county official who addressed the board in such a complaint should be summarily dismissed.
